

Job Title: Rising Tide Intern – Product Analyst

Hour per week: 35 hours per week as per standard Elsevier UK contract

Please also add a short description of the team.

About our Submissions and Editorial Product Management Team

Our team improves our science, technology and medical journal's submissions platform to ensure researchers and clinicians have an exceptional publishing experience. We enable the successful submission of over 2.5 million articles annually and help editors facilitate the peer-review process with other experts. We take ownership for our operating goals and product strategy by collaborating with teams to continuously improve and innovate our products and services.

About the Role

As a Product Analyst, you will be supporting our product team's objective to deliver an accessible digital experience that enables our business to successfully deliver on our operating and strategic goals. You will collaborate with cross-functional product teams and business stakeholders to track and promote their progress towards the shared objective. You will focus on outcomes and use metrics and analysis to influence the delivery of flawless product developments and enhancements.

Responsibilities

- Measure performance. Set up dashboards and reports to track performance.
- Utilise quantitative and qualitative data and analysis to share product insights.
- Collaborate with cross-functional product teams to create awareness of progress and action if behind expectations
- Analyse information on competitors to inform future product enhancements

Requirements

- A real passion for web technology
- An interest in science and research
- Ability to get on with all kinds of people
- Good IT skills, with Excel and PowerPoint most important
- Excellent organizational, time-management, communication and teamwork skills